GENERAL INTRODUCTION

PROVENANCE

The Collection was donated to the Library by Dr Liz Lyon, Director, UKOLN, in July 2013. A small amount of additional material was donated by Mrs Bryant in 2019.

BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE HISTORY OF UKOLN

In September 1977, with funding from the British Library, University Librarian Maurice Line (1928-2010) initiated the Bath University Programme of Catalogue Research with the aim of supporting research and education on all aspects of the design, production and utilisation of library records. The work of the Programme led in 1979 to the establishment of the Centre for Catalogue Research, later renamed the Centre for Bibliographic Management to reflect its broadening remit. Based at the University of Bath the Centre's first director was Philip Bryant (1932-2016).

In 1989 the British Library set up the UK Office for Library Networking comprising one full-time member of staff to work in association with the Centre for Bibliographic Management. The two units merged in 1992 and started to receive additional core funding from the Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC). The combined organisation was known briefly as UKOLN: The Office for Library and Information Networking before becoming the UK Office for Library and Information Networking in 1995 and finally simply UKOLN from 2002. In 1994 Lorcan Dempsey succeeded Philip Bryant as Director. Liz Lyon became Director in 2000.

As a centre of expertise in information management serving the library, education and cultural heritage sectors UKOLN's work was diverse and far-reaching. It included advancing knowledge through research, influencing policy and informing practice, promoting community-building and raising awareness, developing innovative systems and services based on emerging technologies and acting as an agent for knowledge transfer. Members of UKOLN staff played a key role in the evolution of professional information management theory while offering support to those concerned with its practical application. With specialist focus on the exploration of issues such as metadata, interoperability and digital curation UKOLN was involved in a broad range of national and international projects at the cutting edge of information science over a period of time that saw the rapid transition from print to digital formats.

From 1996 UKOLN published Ariadne, a magazine for information practitioners in academia, archives, libraries and museums, containing news of current initiatives, technological developments and networking opportunities in the UK and abroad. UKOLN also organised a huge number of events, from meetings and workshops to large international conferences including the annual Institutional Web Management Workshop. In 2004 UKOLN was one of the founder members of the Digital Curation Centre (DCC).

In May 2013 JISC's annual funding grant was withdrawn and as a result two thirds of UKOLN's 24 members of staff based at the University of Bath were made redundant. Although UKOLN continued to operate, owing to its reduced size its scope and visibility at both national and international levels were severely impaired. UKOLN's Director departed without replacement in late 2013. By July 2015 remaining members of staff had been redeployed marking the cessation of all UKOLN activity.

DESCRIPTION OF THE COLLECTION

The material is presented in the order given in the contents list. It covers the period from 1970 to 2012.

The collection is not comprehensive but comprises a representative cross section of administrative documentation and research outputs spanning four decades of UKOLN operations. It includes advisory and management committee minutes, planning and funding records, publications, reports, conference and event papers, and material relating to UKOLN project work. As well as containing examples of pioneering research, the collection provides detailed evidence of how information professionals anticipated and adapted to the changing technologies, priorities and expectations of the late twentieth and early twenty-first centuries.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We are grateful to Dr Lyon, her UKOLN colleagues and Mrs Bryant for their assistance in making this material available.

SECTION B PAPERS, PUBLICATIONS & PROJECT REPORTS 1970-2010

This section contains published outputs of the UK Office of Library and Information Networking (UKOLN) and its predecessor organisations. They include formal reports, organisational communications and sector briefings as well as academic papers and monographs written and edited by staff individually or in collaboration. In some cases, a member of the UKOLN team is one of many contributors to a publication as a result of a broad consultation exercise, while in others they are sole author. Topics covered include informational requirements of researchers, catalogue content and design, bibliographic management, resource discovery and digital libraries.

The section also contains several reports relating to research carried out at the University of Bath Library in the early 1970s that pre-date and in many ways anticipate the establishment of the Bath University Programme of Catalogue Research in 1977.

D/2 BNB CURRENCY SURVEY 1977-2001

The BNB Currency Survey, monitoring the coverage and currency of the UK MARC record service, ran from January 1980 until March 2005. Every month academic and public libraries provided sample titles to UKOLN. These were checked against BNB files on the British Library database and statistical analysis produced an index of currency or 'hit rate'. The results of the survey demonstrated that the British Library had significantly improved the currency of its records at the time they were needed by libraries.

D/2/1-D/2/4 Project papers, reports, correspondence and publicity relating to the methodology, administration, management and findings of the BNB Currency Survey, 1977-2001.
