

All Doctoral (and MPhil) candidates are required to deposit a hard-bound copy and an electronic copy of their thesis to be stored and made available by the University Library. The default expectation is that the full-text of the thesis will be publicly accessible in the Library repository. The Board of Studies cannot award you with a degree until you have provided the thesis, and both the examiners' report and your HD3 form have been returned.

1. Upload the thesis to the University's research information system, Pure (step-by-step instructions on page 2)
2. Complete this form and email it to your Doctoral Programme Administrator.
3. Deliver your printed and hard-bound thesis to the Doctoral College, or email your Print Unit receipt for these services, and the Programme Administrator will collect the hard-bound copy and record the submission.

Electronic thesis deposit

In depositing the final version of your thesis into Pure you have:

- Warranted that the online publication of this thesis shall not infringe the copyright of any third party (guidance on copyright in theses is available from the Library).
- Authorised the University of Bath to store the electronic version & make it available online.
- Agreed that the thesis will be made publicly available online via the University's Research Portal and may be made available via the British Library Electronic Thesis Online Service (EThOS) and similar theses services.

If there are reasons not to make the thesis publicly available immediately after examination, access can be restricted with a temporary embargo, but if your research has been sponsored please check for any conditions regarding public availability of material. An elective 12-month delay of access to the full-text of the thesis is freely available:

I request a 12- month embargo upon access to the full text of my thesis within the Library

The restriction is needed for the following reason: (e.g. commercial sensitivity, ethical sensitivity, imminent publication plans)

Please note: A record of every thesis submission is displayed on the Research Portal. This metadata (title/author/abstract) is displayed even when there is a temporary embargo upon access to the full-text of the thesis.

To request permission from the Board of Studies (Doctoral) for a more extensive embargo that includes the metadata record, for an embargo period of longer than 12 months, or to deposit a redacted version of the thesis, use form PGR7
