CROSSING BOUNDARIES: THE 2023 BUSINESS AND MODERN SLAVERY RESEARCH CONFERENCE

EVENT PROGRAMME

BATH, UK, SEPTEMBER 19–22

WELCOME

Welcome to Crossing Boundaries: the 2023 Business and Modern Slavery Research Conference, hosted at the University of Bath School of Management.

The conference provides a wonderful opportunity for those interested in business and modern slavery to come together to listen and share their research and insights on this critical and complex topic. The theme of crossing boundaries reflects the aim of the conference to enable business and modern slavery researchers to straddle boundaries between different academic disciplines, between levels of experience, between researchers and survivors, and between the spheres of research and practice, whether in business, government, civil society, or the media.

We are delighted to be hosting you in our brand-new School of Management building at Claverton Down, our campus located on the edge of the UNESCO World Heritage city of Bath. The city is famous for its Roman and medieval roots, as well as its Georgian architecture, much of it made possible by the proceeds of the transatlantic slave trade.

There are many historic locations to visit, many of which you can explore in relation to Bath's role in the slave trade as part of one of our guided or self-guided walks.

With over 80 participants, based in 14 different countries across the world, Crossing Boundaries is the largest ever gathering of business and modern slavery researchers to date. Thank you to all of you for submitting your work, agreeing to participate, and for joining us here in Bath. We also extend our deepest appreciation to the Society for the Advancement of Management Studies (SAMS) and to the University of Bath School of Management for their financial support, and to the Journal of Supply Chain Management for supporting the Best Paper prize. Thank you also for the wonderful administrative support team at the School of Management, and in particular Georgie Goff for making the event happen.

We hope that you will have an invigorating conference and an enjoyable stay in Bath filled with new ideas and inspirations that will carry you across the boundaries.

MENTOR LUNCHES

(13.00 – 14.00, Sep 21)

The mentor lunches are an opportunity to cross boundaries of seniority (between early career scholars and more senior scholars), discipline, and research and practice. Please take a brown bag lunch and eat and talk together in your groups. This is an informal networking lunch, so there is no set agenda, but hopefully the mentors will be able to provide some advice to their more junior colleagues (about careers, research, teaching, etc), and the practitioners will be able to provide some insight into different aspects of the world of anti-slavery practice.
